

I'd Love To Live With You Again

Gene Watson

Loneliness has made me
Weak enough to meet you here
The warmest thing that's touched my lips
Since your lips, is a tear
You say you love me
And want me back again
But oh you're wrong you see
Oh I'd love to live with you again
Then I couldn't live with me.

Your lips are as soft as ever
And so is your hair
But still the thrill is gone
Because another has been there
It breaks my heart to walk away
From one I need so desperately
Oh I'd love to live with you again
But then I couldn't live with me.

Your lips are as soft as ever
And so is your hair
But still the thrill is gone
Because another has been there
It breaks my heart to walk away
From one I need so desperately
Oh I'd love to live with you again
But then I couldn't live with me.
