

Playing the Game

Gentle Giant

As I hold the key to the back door of the world I feel my Hand touching bounds never had before.
I can view the power of my position and my eyes can see more than anyone in any place, I'll play the game and never ever lose.

I'm the king in fighting competition and the other pieces are there for my art and my tactics now.
All my games are won before they're played for I have planned that no opposition can stage a fight
I'll play the game and never ever lose.

My thoughts never spoken only the visions inside my head the truth never broken within my silent words left unsaid.

I will steer the helm of all the nation
as the captain
take my rewards for all the good I'm doing now, and no words that I'm the knave will alter my philosophy for if any are heard, the games started again I'll never ever lose.