

Good Ones and Bad Ones

George Jones

Some come from Heaven and some crawl from Hell
And the good fight the bad for your soul
But it's hard to tell the lie from the truth
When you find one that easy to hold

There's no way of knowing which one you've been lovin'
Till you leave 'em or you lose her for good
By then it's too late, you just mark it off to fate
Either way, you end up a fool

It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the good makes you feel like you should
It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the bad makes you feel just as good

A good one will love you for all that she's worth
A bad one will take you for more
A good one will cherish the key to your heart
And a bad one, a key to your door

A good one will love you for richer or poorer
But that makes the bad'er one worse
A good one will love you till death do you apart
And a bad one makes sure you go first

It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the good makes you feel like you should
It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the bad makes you feel just as good

It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the good makes you feel like you should
It's a fine line between Heaven and Hell
When the bad makes you feel just as good
