

Dublin Song

Dublin Song - T.Noonan

I remember sitting on a roof, looking over Dublin town

It still seems so warm

A sunny day, the shirts were off with love in the air

Oh, we had it captured there

We didn't care too much about the weight of it all

The basement flat sinners were loving it all

But it still works 'round my mind,

Guess it will for a very long time

But i know my heart will always be there

I recall those street urchin blues,

The cobblestones of love and abuse

That still keep me warm

You look around, the knowing smile, there were friends in the air

Time stopped for a long breath

The men around the peace pipe took leave of it all,

The whole thing just stank but we still had a ball

But it still works 'round my mind,

Guess it will for a very long time

But I know my heart will always be there

Yes I know my heart will always be there....
