

Dying To See You

Giant

I saw your picture and I wiped the dust away
Still can't believe that you're gone
Don't know how I'll make it through another day
It's all I can do to carry on baby

I'm dying to see you, to look into your eyes again
Since you left, things ain't been the same
I'm dying to feel you, dying to hold you in my arms once more
How I long to hear you call my name

In the back of an old closet behind a broken door
Sits a tattered box alone on an empty floor
Every now and then I take it out and look inside
The memories that fill my head, it makes this old man smile

I'm dying to see you, to look into your eyes again
Since you left, things ain't been the same
I'm dying to feel you, dying to hold you in my arms once more
How I long to hear you call my name

It's just not the same

I'm dying to see you, to look into your eyes again
Since you left, things ain't been the same
I'm dying to feel you, dying to hold you in my arms once more
How I long to hear you call my name
