

Eastwest World

Gino Vannelli

Hello pretty woman dark as night
Dancing like a flame burning bright
Hiplocks and shimmy, yeah baby gimme
Those water pipe dreams

Spin your raven hair round and round
Turn me right side up, up side down
Tap your cymbals and jingle the jangle
Of your magic tambourine

While tomcats on flat tops jet over the ocean
What say you and me put some love into motion

Eastwest world!
And the walls come tumbling down
And the blue eyes turn to brown
Deep in the heartland
Eastwest world!
In a flash yesterday's gone
And the cowboy sings his song
Out in the desert sand

In your eyes I see the rising sun
The crescent moon and the cross as one
The grand united theory in the golden earring
Of a gypsy girl

So what say you and me set our spirits free?
Sip a little white lightning' neath a banyan tree
Against the wind against the grain make a baby make a change
In a big bad world

In the long run this earth will turn into a heaven
By love or by war, baby choose your weapon

Eastwest world!
And the walls come tumbling down
And the blue eyes turn to brown
Deep in the heartland
Eastwest world!
In a flash yesterday's gone
And the cowboy sings his song
Out in the desert sand

So what say you and me set our spirits free?
Sip a little white lightning' neath a banyan tree
Against the wind against the grain make a baby make a change
In a big bad world

In the long run this earth will turn into a heaven
By love or by war, baby choose your weapon

Eastwest world!
And the walls come tumbling down
And the blue eyes turn to brown
Deep in the heartland
Eastwest world!

In a flash yesterday's gone
And the cowboy sings his song
Out in the desert sand
