

countless scuffles, countless battles, countless wars where did the art of communication go end result some walk away with a feeling of victory while many get to live the rest of their lives with loss its been quoted to keep your friends close and your enemies closer... but who's to say who your real friends and enemies are when... many times you feel the kiss of Judas on your face.. here we go again
trying to find a solution to a recurring problem...i wonder why we haven't been able to learn from our mistakes the years go by and we still destroy ourselves i'll be the better person here let's put the past behind us now and think about tomorrow there's so much out for all of us to experience we'll work together and coexist who said friendship doesn't work there is so much out there to do with ourselves than be at each other's neck
