Second Door To The Right

Glasseater

Where did you go? You don't reside here anymore The girl next door, walked out her door Searching for something more You're screaming I can't hear one word you say Let's settle down, let's talk it out and realize nothing's wron g No one understands you You're all alone Just know there's one word to change it all One word to take it all back and start from scratch