When Dreaming Gets Drastic

But let me fall asleep first

Go Radio

Can we talk just a little more like we did before Sing it loud like it matters to you Don't be so whoa oh oh oh, whoa Oh no Can this be just a little more heart and a little less consequence So this is what you think about But did you have to say it all out loud And you can stay Or give your heart to someone else There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself You can find somebody else to give your worse But let me fall asleep first Can this song get a little dark and can it leave a mark Can I say what I need for a change But don't be so cold So bold This is aimed at what you'll say when the light gets turned out and it all f eels the same Something to sing about Or maybe something to scream about And you can stay Or give your heart to someone else There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself You can find somebody else to give your worse But let me fall asleep first She's in a tight shirt with a little bit of lipstick And I've never felt this homesick now As now You know it really is a shame Where your hearts at I guess its something of a game And how the key fits And every story ends the same Can we help it If this was any other time, any other place we would lose it all Anything decent With the memory of her taste I couldn't fix it If I was any other boy If this were any other time, maybe any other place I could lose it all And you can stay Or give your heart to someone else There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself You can find somebody else to give your worse

You can find somebody else to give your worse But let me fall asleep first
