When I sit by myself I know it's the lonely way. What I had in myself I have lost along the way.

But I choose by this time To be isolated. I know you must think now That I am already dead.

But I still belong to me. But I still belong to me.

When my mind tells my soul I need to be with someone. I reject all I feel For I'm not a chosen one.

You will see that I know. I will never be assured That the one I will be Has been lost along the shore.

But I still belong to me. But I still belong to me.
