

You're Only Punk Once

Good Clean Fun

You ate and you smoked and you drank all your words
We all know it's true because of the rumors we've heard
You've grown up and moved on, you're ready to leave
But not a thing that you do can touch what I believe

So someone has gone and sold out punk rock
You know it's happened before so why all the shock?
It's so clear to see that it was never meant to be
And that's O.K., what they do now will not change me

It now seems so clear who could have guessed at the time
It was just like a miracle they turned from water to wine
Raising their glasses they say they feel fine
They've all turned their backs, but I will never turn mine

You're only punk once so you'd better do it right
Before you become the system that we all choose to fight
You say "nothing lasts forever we are wasting our time
We should not even try"
But I say I'll stay positive until the day I die
