

Letters Home

Good Riddance

so many things I never said
All those regrets and broken promises Would it have mattered if I had Told you everything I felt admitted I was scared of losing
You would you have understood?
Remember when you said you'd wait forever
And I thought it was true
And as this broken heart just keeps on beating I'll send these letters home to you Because I don't know what else to do I'll wait for you I guess it's been seven weeks and I can't get you of my mind when will I find my way back to where we were when I left the tape you sent my pillow's drenched with tears confirmed my worst fears
