

Killing Me

Graham Colton

The cars are passing down below
And all that's left of you is all your clothes
You left your key, the T.V's on
Our picture's face down by the alarm clock radio

The only thing you ever wanted was for me to be here,
To stay
But now you've gone away

I really don't know if it'd make it all better
But I let myself go and put it in a letter to you
I know I've been stupid and don't have a reason
But I'm tryin not to ruin the one thing I believe in, you
It's killing me, killing you

I remember how you drove me mad
You'd leave your rings and jewelry by the bath
Waking up, the bed sheets gone
Spend half the night tryin' to steal it back

The only thing you ever wanted was for me to be here,
To stay
But now you've gone away
I wish I could pick up the phone and tell you how I'm feeling
And tell you how I've changed
I'd tell you everything

I really don't know if it'd make it all better
But I let myself go and put it in a letter to you
'Cause I know I've been stupid and don't have a reason
But I'm tryin not to ruin the one thing I believe in, you
It's killing me, killing you

'Cause you're all that I want, (you pleaded)
And you're all that I need (I need it)
Now that you're gone,
I see it

I really don't know if it'd make it all better
But I let myself go and put it in a letter to you
'Cause I know I've been stupid and don't have a reason
But I'm tryin not to ruin the one thing I believe in, you

I really don't know if it'd make it all better
But I let myself go and put it in a letter to you
'Cause I know I've been stupid and don't have a reason
But I'm tryin not to ruin the one thing I believe in, you
It's killing me, killing you
