My Love's Strong

Graham Parker

When the world's asleep   and there's no one in your arms
Raindrops hit the window like distant alarms
You don't have to worry hey girl don't you cry
My love beats adversity baby eats it alive
And I got a real human soul   don't tell me that I'm wrong
I'll be there and my love's strong

When you have to work, ike a slave everyday
Pounding the concrete and counting your change
When you have to sweat, while the privileged relax
When you feel invisible baby, and falling through the cracks re member
You got a real human soul. don't tell me that I'm wrong

Strong and relentless behind the veil of forgetfulness
That covers the heart not tied up in bondage
Or nailed to the wall with a dart

When you have to suffer   or howl out in pain
And act like you're hungry for more of the same let me tell ya!
You got a real human soul you can't tell me I'm wrong
