

Oasis

Graham Parker

I am a lucky man that's what I think I might come close to the edge but I never sink
And I notice that vulnerable look in your eyes tonight
And in the desert that passes for my heart, Sweet rain is falli ng tonight
You're my oasis, You're my Oasis, Oasis
Be my oasis and I will try not to be your mirage

I must be choked with emotion, I can't find the right words to say I'm not a pillar of devotion, but don't let that stand in your way
And as the sun sinks blood red in the west it reminds me of you r bleeding heart and as I lay down my head on your breast Nothing can tear us ap art
Cos you're my oasis, you're my oasis
Be my oasis and I won't be your mirage

Cos I am a lucky man, yeah that's what i think I might be swimming for my life but I'll never sink
And as the quicksand comes up to my neck and holds me down like a grave
I will reach out for your hand and as I touch it I'm saved by a n oasis

You're my Oasis, Oasis
Be my oasis and I will try not to be your mirage
And I won't be your mirage
