In The Tradition

Great White

Here I am Hearing the same old good advice Surrounded by fools Who could swear each heart loves twice I can't pretend everything's good Believe me I wish that I could

I can't fake a smile through the evening I'll probably crack if the pain's too strong Play a song for me but it has to be In the tradition of love gone wrong

I've noticed today I have one less friend to call And no one to tell me it's all right As my world starts to fall I'm doing the best that I can And I've had all the help I can stand

I can't fake a smile through the evening I'll probably crack if the pain's too strong Play a song for me but it has to be In the tradition of love gone wrong

I'm ready to crash yes I am But I'll hide it the best that I can

I can't fake a smile through the evening I'll probably crack if the pain's too strong Play a song for me but it has to be In the tradition of love gone wrong In the tradition of love gone wrong
