Landline

Greg Laswell

I think the tree may fall in the front yard If this storm has it's way I hear you dancing on the floorboards above Unaware of what's at stake All I ever needed was a landline Just in case the power lines go down All I needed would never be enough for me

I think the storm may take the screen door If the wind gets it's way I hear you singing on the floor just below Unaware of what's at stake All I ever needed was a landline Just in case the power lines go down All I needed would never be enough for me

All I ever needed was a landline Just in case the power lines go down All I needed would never be enough for me All I ever needed was a landline Just in case the power lines go down All I needed would never be enough for me

All I needed would never be enough for me All I needed would never be enough for me All I needed would All I needed would never be enough for me All I needed would never be enough for me
