

Dead In The Water

Grieves

What did you want from me? You're knockin' on doors tryin' to wake up the beast. Head full of thorns, you wanna settle the score, you wanna level the board. You wanna level me down.

I find it funny how your heart don't work, and that tattooed diamond on your chest spells hurt. How predictable. Just another shark in the bloodstream. Swimmin' it's way upstream to figure out where love sleeps and kill it like it must be stopped. I don't see the reason in your logic, I just understand the plot, and if I don't find it outta here I swear to God I'll pop from the needles you've been stickin' in me tryin' to throw me off when I fly straight. Just another meal for the vultures, picked into pieces and buried under the boulders. Until the last cracked molar is found, I'm just a victim with the soul torn out of him and shot to the ground, without the glory. Broken and that's the way that you like it with the war horns fired up, stimulating excitement and I can see why the devil put you in ranks but should have asked you what you wanted before you flashed me the fangs, you've got a problem.

What did you want from me? You're knockin' on doors tryin' to wake up the beast. Head full of thorns, you wanna settle the score, you wanna level the board. You wanna level me down.

I've been livin' in this winter you've provided me. Eating all the pages of this history inside of me. For what? Just so you can run around the graveyard, scream into the heavens and sink the boat that you came on? I've taken all the pain I can, and plan on jumpin' off this shit before I lose it and never know who I am. Before this vessel ever gets in sight of land, I'm a dive into the waters underneath it and take my chances at hand until it drowns out. You've got a perfect way of killing me, an angel in appearance with a smile like a guillotine and I don't think that you can ever change. Pain is your nicotine, fightin' me is the flame and it stays that way. Cause everything is frozen in your steps, and this blade is a trophy to your unexpected (guess?), you're a monster, and I can smell it rotting in your teeth. Just hope that you can figure out what you've been looking for and leave, you've got a problem.

What did you want from me? You're knockin' on doors tryin' to wake up the beast. Head full of thorns, you wanna settle the score, you wanna level the board. You wanna level me down.