

War For The Crippled

Grieves

I scale the razor while I rope over the dead space and arrows s ticking out that bullseye tattooed on my breastplate I'm high flying, tasting the poison on the clouds breath, a lit tle bit too nervous just to follow when that crowds steps I break, break, into little tiny pieces and vanish and you can take, take all the memories and make patterns of em and say, say, that you'll never think about me when they ask and if they don't look like they trust you can turn around and dash and this is awful to say but I don't think you ever needed me that tooth was through your lip before you ever started eating me beatin' it downs not what you need to be taught here, I'm beggi n you just to stop for a little bit and let that broken record play for you and you can smell the smoke from all the pain it took to lay it s groove and fall into that place where you can die from it or face the truth it's silly, 'cause I all see is danger when I lay with you the voices start talking and saying

I know they say happiness is a warm gun, and sorrow is a cold j agged blade
I know they say happiness is a warm gun
I know they say happiness is a warm gun, and sorrow is a cold j
agged blade
I know they say happiness is a warm gun and I got it torn and i t aimed at your face

How come your eyes hurt me so bad? mirrors or windows? can you feel that? how would you describe t hat?
I fear I'm too simple. How come your hands are so, so cold? my skin or yours? no circulation, heavy pulse I fear with every use to me my aneurism now that caution so convincing, fully engage the arm hairs, drys ou t the mouth
it's alkiline, count the cate, that courage, that now's the tim e that head devise, spin, spin, with a big fake grin and the skin gettin thicker by the blink know the ill by the stink and the length of the beard know the real by the stare and the feel way know the real by the gut, know to seal your convictions with st eel know steal by how it stings your feelings, no further advice no cure for the vice, no feelings searing like spice in a con l ife

with the fears like contacts and never call any backs, what's up and I feel foul 'bout it, but so much lighter 'bout it, right?

I know they say happiness is a warm gun, and sorrow is a cold jagged blade

I know they say happiness is a warm gun

I know they say happiness is a warm gun, and sorrow is a cold jagged blade

I know they say happiness is a warm gun and I got it torn and it aimed at your face