Sky Took Hold

Your mind is racing The sky took hold Of all my little daily fears They never seem to go A dusty vista You hunger for the core I never meant to take it so far A mirror never shows

Who I am beneath the surface Hiding out so long inside my mind Every day I stay blind to it Habit comes and tears me open wide All the time

Your heart is erasing The time just froze And left me with little doubt That there's anywhere to go I'm pushing forward To leave this home I never meant to stay so long My reflection never shows

Who I am beneath the surface Hiding out so long inside my mind Every day I stay blind to it Habit comes and tears me open wide All the time

Since I was a young boy it was always there Inside me growing none of it seems fair I've grown to accept it, let it take the stage And leave me helpless, watching far away