Crushed Out

I won't let you bother me You'll never know what i am thinking I won't get angry because I cannot feel anything

My patience has been tried Too many times beyond my counting Now you yell at me I cannot hear you anymore

I will take care of things With all of what i am I cannot gaurantee I'll do as well again

Ever since this started Anger has become my mother Superego has died Because she has taken over My body hums from inside I don't know what i am doing I must control my hands So that you can continue breathing