

Just Me and My Broken Heart

Hank Williams Jr.

We were waiting at the church,
We watched and saw the wedding start,
As the organ played, we stood there and prayed,
Just me and my broken heart.

Oh, can't you see what you have done,
To me, oh foolish foolish pride,
You brought tears and sorrow to,
An untrue heart that never cried.

I saw the sunshine of my life,
Who once I know just worshiped me,
Standin' by another's side,
And soon his bride she'll be.

I bowed my head in grief and shame,
As I felt the teardrops start,
But as the organ played, we stood there and prayed,
Just me and my broken heart.
