The Same Old Story

Hank Williams Jr.

Hey there lonely girl can I sit with you I've just got to find someone to tell my story to You've heard it all before now here it is once more And please kiss away my tears when I am through It's just the same old story once again with a sweet beginning and a bitter end A love affair that didn't turn out right And the world has one more broken heart tonight Would you like to dance oh you know it's been a long time Since I had a woman satisfy my urge But you know it never works a false love won't take away hurt But just pretend I'm him and I'll pretend you're her And it'll be just the same old story

And the world had one more broken heart tonight