Our time has come. This is were time stops. This is where everything turns black. Where everything ends, and everything begins. I know I won't be missed. I know, I know... Don't pretend that you will. I'm tired of all these lies, I'm tired of my helpless cries, so don't try to stop me from pulling this trigger. Let me have this one moment, to have rejuvinate myself and get rid of the dirty stench that I placed on this earth (Me). No bullet can accomplish this task, I never trusted the weapons that were created by man. There is no life after death. But before I go, Let me watch look through the infinite trees. Let me dance to the snow storm and sing along with the winds as i reach for the sky. My tears can't stop flowing, everyone says to let go of the past, so I jumped off the mountain that I once stood still on. Watching myself fall Let me close my eyes and never wake up, I am finally letting go, I am finally going to stop breathing. Hearing his voice in my head saying, Let it go, let it go, you have lost it all, you have done it all, this journey is finally over. You don't have to suffer anymore. Let it go...