

Sleeping Alone

Heart in Hand

I tried so hard, to make things work,
To keep that smile on your face,
To keep your eyes fixated on mine,
To keep us alive.

You took all I had to give,
and threw it away.
You took all I had to give,
and pushed me away.

This doesn't feel right anymore,
My chest feels tight.
There is no easy way to tell you,
This doesn't feel right anymore
Your touch is cold
And even though I'm lying next to you,
feels like I'm sleeping alone.

After all this time,
we find ourselves,
trying to hold on.
I'm losing my grip,
losing my grip on you
We find ourselves walking down that path,
we've walked a thousand times

Can you see the end?
Can you see the end?

This doesn't feel right anymore,
my chest feels tight.
There is no easy way to tell you
This doesn't feel right anymore
Your touch is cold
And even though I'm lying next to you,
feels like I'm sleeping alone.

I've never felt so alone.

This bed was never made for two,
I guess we were just cheating ourselves.
Bare faced liars, I've found a way out.

Open the door, and let me out.
Let it all out.