

Fear

Heaven & Hell

If you've never heard before
There was once a time when only God had fire
The moon and stars and nothing more
To lead you through the night

If Van der Hell and Satan had a daughter
He must have sent her here to hide the flame
We're still afraid, must be he taught her so well
We've seen the light, so white and all the same

Superstition, go away
We wear the mark
Fear!

There's a corner of the mind
With a door that always opens up at sundown
And once inside, it's to remind you
To hide from eyes that shine

We ran until we found we had the power
Illuminate the world and make it burn
We're still afraid, must be that door in your brain
You've seen some light, and you pray it will return

Superstition, go away
We wear the mark
Fear!

If Van der Hell and Satan sent his daughter
She must have got lost and can't go home
We're still afraid, and he can't find her again
We've seen some light, but it will always be the same

Eve illusion, go away
We still share the mark
Fear! Fear!
