

Building Glare

Hey Marseilles

The building glare has caught my ear what a shame we're standing here breathing in more than our lungs allow

You can say you love me less all I hear are sound effects I can promise you more than these crowds

Watch the walls fall away let the road lead the way we don't need a host to make a home we will be all that each of her owns

Go along the beaten path where no one ever needs to ask what separates this from the day before

Higher rise and water views don't just fall in front of you the less we have will mean there's always more

Watch the walls fall away
let the road lead the way we don't need a god to make believe we will be all that each of her needs

I'll lead you into the standard ground where endless air will finally slow down all that we know can turn the hands around

I will go there if you will lead me I'll take what we have and say we'll never leave I will go there if you will be with me
