

Looking Back

Hey Marseilles

Cold nights taunt me all the time
The wind runs through my clothes
They say the coffee here is nice
But no one says hello

You have your place
I've found my way around
So the rain won't fall twice on the same ground

If you're looking back, you'll never move your feet
If you're looking back, that's all you'll ever see
When I find my way to you, I know I'll stay
When I look ahead, I know you're all I need

Leave the thought of what you know
Right beside the door
The air we breathe inside of here
Is thicker than before

You have your place
I've found my way around
So the rain won't fall twice on the same ground

In the new year
I'll be right here for a while
If you'll love me 'til time to settle down

If you're looking back you'll never move your feet
If you're looking back, that's all you'll ever see
When I find my way to you, I know I'll stay
When I look ahead, I know you're all I need

If ever I could see your face near me
I'd never leave the place that you'd find me
If ever I could see your face near me
I'd never leave the place that you'd find me

If ever I could see your face near me
I'd never leave the place that you'd find me
If ever I could see your face near me
I'd never leave the place that you'd find me
I, I would call that home
