

Where The Wind May Blow

The Hooters

There's thunder on the mountain
There's a rumbling in the sky
There's smoke on the horizon
And they say the end is nigh

So dry your eyes, my darling
Hush, now don't you cry
The waters may be rising
But together we will fly
Yes, together we will fly

We'll go where the wind may blow
Through the ice and snow
Through the fires below
Away to a brand new day
You and I will go
Where the wind may blow

The eastern world's a-burning
And the west ain't far behind
A billion blind believers
But a hero's hard to find

So dry your eyes, my darling
Put your hand in mine
For morning is a-coming
And again the sun will shine
Yes, again the sun will shine

We'll go where the wind may blow
Through the ice and snow
Through the fires below
Away to a brand new day
You and I will go
Where the wind may blow

We'll go where the wind may blow
Through the ice and snow
Through the fires below
Away to a brand new day
You and I will go
Where the wind may blow