Gone Too Far

Hundred Reasons

we will not spiral down i'll do whatever i can to stop that three and a half years of emotional rollercoasters is enough to decide that some things are worth the effort spent finally it's a realisation that dawned on both of us and with enough effort and knowledge of the past we don't need to follow the path laid out by others and it's gone too far the words that guide us take your voice away and i guess we can still chastise ourselves for taking too long to discover what everybody else already knew and all that was needed was the opening of the blinkered eyes long enough to register what was in front of us all along i can't remember worse times than when we were apart we won't stumble

like we did before