I'm gonna live today, live to make a change. There's comes a time in every life when it's time to move on. and well hey, that what it is today, it's time to make a change I was never awake, just dreaming of the days When things were said and never done. But now this is the life I lead, living only to breathe hope into humanity. I made a promise to myself. I promised I'd never go back to thinking of this place as my wishing well. It's the same ol' take, take, take I gave up on the world and that's all I could give. And I said I'll never go back to putting myself above the rest. I held my chin up high, but that's all I could lift. Inside of me was a void as empty as the sky without the sun. I was never awake, just dreaming of the days when things were said and never done. But now this is the life I lead, living only to breathe hope into humanity. I'm gonna live today.