Is there someone who could tell me Where I'm coming from?
Is there someone who could tell me Where I go?

I would be
I could be
I should be
No matter who I am
There's no place there I can live
I'm sleepless
I'm useless
I'm homeless
No matter who I am
There's no place where I can live

I look to the burning sky
I think of these centuries of hate
War for religion, politics, race
They were your brothers
But now you will kill them
Until the complete extremination of your enemies
Your land's devastated
But you think: "This is my country now"

From the four points comes the wind From the oceans came life From millions years before To millions years after We're just part of the cycle of life

Each man is different and unique But holds no land in this world From dust to dust Ashes to ashes Nature is the only law
