

Stepping into small life nowhere England Shaking hands with the big life idiots I was Trying to pick up some ordinary-ness
From the shopping bag inspirational quiet

Picking up a detail from a muscle magazine Whilst talking to someone else's wife and wondering do I really care about sheet metal workers Caught you looking though your, shop window reflection, shop wi ndow reflection,
shop window reflection.

Some run down amusement arcade humour
Like cheap beer and instant coffee was pouring out Over the cities pavements Calling closing time on that cinema cue further

Thursday night on the railway lines
Is life and death burnt away in the distance and A billion TV screens close their weary eyes
