

Water Into Wine Cooler

If Hope Dies

Countless faces turned skyward hands clasped together waiting for a sign from above the answers to all our problems what makes you think that there's someone listening? speaking on a one-way line that's connection isn't functioning no one can hear you and your words are being wasted find the strength within yourself the power to affect your situation no one is listening to your words you're the only one who can save yourself salvation comes from within you've prayed a thousand times how many miracles have you witnessed lain prostrate all your life begging for attention your words have fallen on deaf ears you've been betrayed by your faith you've been misled into thinking that this life doesn't matter don't give up on this life for the next