

Blatchford

Ilya

My heart is dragged by the sole of my shoe
I enter the room my existence is surreal
And I ask myself how do I look and does it matter

The silence in this room occupies more space than the art on display