The Great Sleep

Immolation

A populace unknowing
Caught in a dangerous trance
So focused on the meaningless
That we've failed to see what's real

Sleeping away While the storm quietly moves in

Distracted and unconcious

Lost in a perpetual fog

Burdened with hollow desires

Failing to see our end is near

Sleeping away Now awaikening Into the nightmare

Our comfort breeds our numbness Our numbness fools our minds Now they've fooled us all It's only a matter of time

Paralyzed by a false sense of worth What will it take to break through this coma Our standards have all been broken Oblivious to this vile coup

Falling asleep, falling away from reason
Hallucination of the grandest of scales
Slowly we wake, too late to escape the horror
Helpless we march in
And take our world away

Sleeping away
While the storm, quietly moves in
Sleeping away
Awakening into the nightmare
Sleeping away
Never to awaken again
