heir censure forced the decision Their murder forced by incision

With furtive defiance I ended their lives
My allegiance to the scalpel has reshaped mine

Stuck with a codgerie of bodies
My aims have something new to embody

Flasks brimming with nutritive concoctions To stave off decay and exsiccation

In vials suffused with anti-decomposotes Concealed organelles, their discovery remote

Preservation of...

A post-mortem view to the nature of Death

Preservation of...

A looking glass through to the traces of Death

With our crimes concealed, we've time to reveal Anatomical dogmas, so far not appealed

In perfect suspension, this gralloch begs the question Past this mortal coil, can we affect reclamation

Preservation of...

Channels replete through which we aim to cheat death Preservation of...

To our last breath, pursuing life after death

Information I'll procure from subjects matured
In a gripe's egg of our preserving tinctures
