

Torture

Imperative Reaction

You know you're sinking
And the harder you try to move
The pull gets stronger
Until there's nothing left to lose
So you reach out and beg to be saved
So you can start all over one more time
But you just put it off
You dim another's light

It's torture trying to breathe
With this film wrapped over me
I see right through it, but I know it's there
It's torture having to watch
As you're pushed away from me
I know what I am is too much to bear

You know you're fading
And the harder you try to scream
Your throat gets tighter
Until there's no way left to speak
So you reach out and beg to be saved
So you can start all over one more time
But you just put it off
You dim another's light

It's torture trying to breathe
With this film wrapped over me
I see right through it, but I know it's there
It's torture having to watch
As you're pushed away from me
I know what I am is too much to bear

You know you're sinking
And the harder you try to move
The pull gets stronger
So you reach out and beg to be saved
So you can start all over one more time
But you just put it off
You dim another's light

It's torture trying to breathe
With this film wrapped over me
I see right through it, but I know it's there
It's torture having to watch
As you're pushed away from me
I know what I am is too much to bear
