Imperative Reaction

It's not as easy as it seems
To change the role you play
When you've worn out the dream
What is left to say?
When the mirror stops lying
And the flames draw down
And you're left there wondering how
To figure it out alone

You can fix the frame
You can clean the glass
But the colors that faded
Aren't coming back

How do you know
When the time has come to let it go
When everything you are
Is all that you can do
And then
Where do you go
When the cracks you hid start to show
When everything you were
Is nothing you can do

It's not as easy as it seems
To change the lie you play
When you've torn out the seam
What is left to say?
When the anchor stops sinking
And the lights draw down
And you're left there wondering how
To turn it all back alone

You can fix the frame
You can clean the glass
But the colors that faded
Aren't coming back

How do you know
When the time has come to let it go
When everything you are
Is all that you can do
And then
Where do you go
When the cracks you hid start to show
When everything you were
Is nothing you can do

Nothing you can do will stop
The shame from showing through
Once the curtain falls
And all you are is you...

How do you know
When the time has come to let it go
Is all that you can do

And then
When the cracks you hid start to show
When everything you were

How do you know
When the time has come to let it go
Is all that you can do
And then
When the cracks you hid start to show
When everything you were
