It can't be said in one word There's no simple answer So don't tell me that you That you have it all figured out Because I'll always be searching...for the truth The difference between us...is that I care So you have your answers now And you feel they're better than mine You look down on us all, Afraid to let your insecurity show But I'll always be searching...for the truth The difference between us...is that I care I fucking care! In every face I see A reflection of the real me I won't waste my time judging anyone I'm sorry I choose to get things done!