

Hey Kid

Ingrid Michaelson

Hey kid, hey kid
Don't go too far
I can't protect you when you're shooting like a star
These arms and this heart
They are the only things that I have left to give
Hey kid

At the end of fairy tales, where do we go
Into sunsets in the west, that's where we'll go

Hold my hand and promise you won't let go again
Hold my hand and promise you won't let go of me again

Hey kid, hey kid
Breathe out and in
We've got to make it to the end so we can begin
Glad to be alive, to get it right
I want to take you in my arms and hold you too tight
Hey kid

At the end of fairy tales, where do we go
Into sunsets in the west, that's where we'll go

Hold my hand and promise you won't let go again
(Tell me won't you hold my hand)
Hold my hand (won't you hold my hand) and promise you won't let go of me again

And I need you more than you need me
You got magic in your bones, you are poetry
You are poetry to me
You are poetry
You are poetry to me
You are poetry to me
You are poetry to me

Hold my hand and promise you won't let go again
(Won't you hold my, tell me won't you hold my hand)
(You are poetry to me)
Hold my hand and promise you won't let go of me again
(Won't you hold my, tell me won't you hold my hand)
(You are poetry to me)
(Won't you hold my, tell me won't you hold my hand)
(You are poetry to me)
(You won't let go of me again)
(Won't you hold my, tell me won't you hold my hand)
(You are poetry to me...)
