

Come to Me (Song of the Water Nymph)

Inkubus Sukkubus

A summer night, and a long-forgotten dream
She is here, in the moonlit stream
She's so lonely, her soul screams to be free
She calls to you, "Boy give your heart to me"
Come to me, she's calling you
Come to me, come to me
Like a siren to the sailor moribund
Her song of love will drag you ever down
Her kiss will take you to a fabled sacred land
Her lips will break you and lead you to the dance
Come to me, she's calling you
Come to me, come to me
Come to me, I'll break your heart
Come to me, come to me
Ten-thousand years she's waiting for your touch
Through all her tears she's dreamed of love and lust
She's tired of crying each and every night
A sexual bonfire, come set this girl alight!
