

In the Halls of Awaiting

Insomnium

Evening full of grandeur
Skies tinged with red
Mountains crowned with crimson
Treetops with scarlet blaze
As the dusk is falling, night settles in
Stars slowly come out
Moon glides skywards
...Still cheerless is in my soul
My heart filled with cares...

Longing for the misty shores
Weather-beaten strands so poor
Where the weeping sky archs over water calm
Pining for primeval woods
Murky shade of leafy roof
Where the silent trees arch over our path

Do you walk in mourning, still wear the grief
Raiment of sorrow, remembrance of me
Through the years of bleakness
Winters of bitter cold
Will you not forget me, forsake my soul
...Low-spirited is my song
Downhearted my tune...

Beyond enchanted sea, wistful is my sleep
Darkness by my side, through the dreary night
Will you follow me, through eternity
To another world, to the quiet halls

I've lost my way in the dark
Strayed apart from my love
I've faced the demons of might
Passed away into shades

Long are lonely years, slowly pass these days
In undying land, in the divine light
Where I wait...in the dark

The black of the night turns to dusk of the dawn
Through the mist now shines the fairest light of all
The caress I've waited for eternity
Into the shades, together we fade
