

Lately when I go outside
The skies cry that the worst is over
Is this the place we are supposed to be Something is reaching out to me
Should I be walking back or forward
Is the wait enough to make you go
Down on your knees

Maybe, we'll be alright
In a long run that seems like heaven
Like hearing silence far away
And lifting high
I know the pressure is on
In a race for the life of endless love
It seems too much
Remember
All these things are endless

Midnight has been calling me
With a feeling that could be deadly
I can love the fall 'cause that's a part of me
Drifting in several different worlds
With the stars colliding all around you
I can feel the distance to a past that's on its way

Maybe, we'll be alright
In a long run that seems like heaven
Like hearing silence far away
And lifting high
I know the pressure is on
In a race for the life of endless love
It seems too much
Remember
All these things are endless
