

The True Picture

Jack Jones

They say you never should have loved me
I wasn't good enough for you
But they don't know the true picture
I was always true.

They said your eyes could really wander
That you could roam your lips as well
They never saw the true picture
And I'll never tell.

No one knew that it was you
Who asked that we should part
I said yes, but then I guess
I didn't know my heart.

I love you just as much as ever
I'm just no good with someone new
And that's the real, the true picture
That no one knows but you.
