

Good Morning Sunrise

Jamey Johnson

Good Morning Sunrise, How long has it been?
Well It looks like, I drank myself sober again.
Ever Since she left me, You've been so hard to face.
Good Morning Sunrise, Guess I'll call it a day.

Last time I saw you, You let me down,
I told her by morning, She and I would work things out.
Well You took that sky, just like she was yours to take.
Good Morning Sunrise, Guess I'll call it a day.

You always held her in a better light than I,
I brought her heartache, and your beauty made her cry.

They say whiskey before noon, is such a shame,
That's why the night, has taken your place.
Unlike you, her memory never fades away,
Good Morning Sunrise, Guess I'll call it a day,
Good Morning Sunrise, Guess I'll call it a day.
