

House Without a Heart

Janis Ian

I can do what I want, choose where to haunt I live like a ghost in this town
See a movie at one, go to sleep with the sun knowing you won't be around
All the familiar places
All of the smiling faces They ask me how you are I tell them you are far away but you're coming home soon They smile and walk away leaving me alone to say that I'm lost without you
I miss you more than yesterday
More than words can say
More than hands can pray
I should have known it from the start
that whenever we're apart
I'm just a house without a heart
I can stay out all night, leave on every light Throw all the coupon books away
I can lock out the cat, she can live off her fat
I never liked her anyway
I miss you more than yesterday
More than words can say
More than hands can pray
I should have known it from the start
that whenever we're apart
I'm just a house without a heart
And hearts break without a sound and nobody sees
The heart you are holding now is on its knees
I miss you more than yesterday
More than words can say
More than hands can pray
I should have known it from the start
that whenever we're apart
I'm just a house without a heart