

Begin Again

Jason Gray

This one goes out to you
If you gave all you had and it wasn't enough
It goes out to you
If you're afraid you've failed everybody you've loved
It goes out to you
If the ties that bind are coming undone
And you're so tired that you wanna give up

There's never been a night so long...
There's never been a life too far gone
When you come to the end, you can begin again

This one goes out to you
When you got the call and it wasn't good news
It goes out to you
When there's nothing more that you can do
It goes out to you
When everything sad isn't coming untrue
And every dream you chased got away from you

There's never been a night so long...
There's never been a life too far gone
When you come to the end, you can begin again

It's never too late for a new start
If you give God the pieces of your broken heart
When you come to the end, you can begin again

Arise, my love, the winter's past, the spring has come!
He makes all things beautiful in time
After the fire, what remains is the love that will not change
And makes all things beautiful in time

It's never too late for a new start
No matter how your life's been torn apart
When you're at the end, you can begin again

There's never been a night so long...
There's never been a life too far gone
When you come to the end, you can begin again

It's never too late for a new start
If you give God the pieces of your broken heart
When you come to the end, you can begin again

Oh, when you come to the end, you can begin again
