

Older Lover Undercover

Jason Mraz

Sold Out (In Stereo)

Well an old saying goes mind your manner mind your mother and a man can find a lover who is tan and undercover she might lie about her age but lady, I got no complaints Well she can be as crazy and as foolish as she wanna be but her old school ways of practical technicalities are perfectly sane I'm saying I ain't never seen a saint well I met her in an old cop bar down in silverlake where we spoke about the give and we joked about the take and when they asked for identification I knew hers probably was a fake She's just another older lover undercover she's just another old school, old rule lover and now she's under my covers

And you're wearing that thin disguise don't apologize
and your birthday suit suits you well it suits me, too
it's one hell of a costume I can't find the zipper anywhere on your back perhaps it's attached to the breach of your ass crack

Brr, it's cold in here Well, you keep it hot, dear with a sip of mexican coffee and a grapefruit juice glass of coke, glass of wine just to keep it loose Well the things that you say and do, child and the way that you groove to the music you like the who and the velvet underground old sound, like indy rock, spock rock anything you found in the backseat of your downtown brown, bruised beat-up BMW roll with your downtown self Say go down on me now say, ho, dog, older ladies now still she's just another older lover undercover and we sing this part again

And you're wearing that thin disguise
don't apologize
well it suits me, too
it's one hell of a costume
I can't find the zipper anywhere on your back
perhaps it's attached to the breach of your ass crack

I see your bum

No old dramatic moments just a comment of the soul I respect your nakedness and the way that you unfold and the way you hold a story it's lies but it's told say you're just another older lover undercover
