

Before the Dawn

Jennifer Rush

No shadows on the Wall no footsteps in the hall But I'm not afraid for in my dreams I'm with you now

How I love to see you shine to think of you as mine someday my tears will turn the page of time

Call my name and I'll be there Tell my heart that you're still waiting with the angels.

Come to me before the dawn
when the light of love's still warm
And I can't hear the heavens singing
to our Symphony
When the night has fought this Storm and at last the Ghosts have gone
And I will lead you in the land of Love and life again.

Silence will return and memory's heat will burn but I will light a candle turning all that's Grey to Gold

Behind each breath at night as I long to hold you tight a million stars could never be as bright as you are

Call my name and I'll be there
Tell my heart that you're still

when the light of love's still warm
And I can't hear the heavens singing
to our Symphony
When the night has fought this Storm
and at last the Ghosts have gone
and life again.

Tell the moon and the wind to bring back my Love tell the Stars and the sun I can't see in the dark

Come to me before the dawn
when the light of love's still warm
to our Symphony
When the night has fought this Storm
and at last the Ghosts have gone
and life again.

And I will lead you in the land of Love
and life again.
